DESTROYING INITIATIVE.

It is interesting to note that while the United States is the sole country intent on stifling petroleum development every other commercial rival is stimulating first efforts at securing control of more and more oil bearing lands. The statement appearing yesterday that Great Britain was adopting a policy by which alien locators would be barred from her territorial possessions if their aim were to secure a foothold in oil production strikes the timely keynote that is strikingly suggestive at this time. Coming on the heels of the adoption of the new policy of the United States the British plan discloses group intention and deeper perception than has been displayed by our own lawmakers at Washington. In this land everything that red tape magnificence can devise is exercised to frustrate individual enterprise at home and abroad. Difficulties in the United States has for a long time been close to what must continue the peak unless some new fields of importance are discovered and unless these new fields are found it is obvious that the United States cannot continue for very long to be self sufficient in the matter of petroleum supplies. While this country has rested in former centuries in possession of some two thirds of the world's production of petroleum our oil production has been kept awake by the fact that the world has been bent on getting a mortgage upon our oil and the production not only outside the United States but within its borders. The United States is at last sensing what its British neighbor long ago that the country which controls the fuel supply will control the commerce of the world. The day has passed when America can maintain supremacy in many of the leading lines of trade solely through possession of great natural resources. We must face the time when we shall be no better off than the other European nations dependent upon imports from fields outside their own borders. It is none too soon to adopt a comprehensive program for the safeguarding and stimulation of our oil resources with a view of supplying the demand of ten years hence. The first step should be to encourage fresh development and, if necessary, establish a bonus in the form of extra concessions for individuals or companies opening fresh oil bearing territory.

FIGHTING FIRE WITH FIRE.

The mine operators of Butte after suffering for years from the insane follies of the I. W. W. have at last reached the conclusion that the followers of the red flag are not the class of help essential to the operation of mines any more than it was essential to the harvesting of the great crops of California where the pest was uprooted after a determined stand had been taken against this class of outlaws. So long as the managers are willing to be the subservient tools of the revolutionary order, so long will they have to abide by the consequences of temporizing with the evil that recognizes the existence of no vested interests and boasts of the destructive policies which have made the name of the I. W. W. the synonym for the debasement of industry and the submerging of honest labor. According to resolutions recently adopted at Butte the radicals come out openly in favor of the destruction of industry and boasting that strikes are not organized for the betterment of the workers but for the overthrow of the men whose money have made possible the development of mines and all other industries. After vainly endeavoring to combat these forces by treating and negotiating with the leaders, the mine operators have at last reached the conclusion that nothing is to be gained by concessions to the wreckers who have fastened themselves on the mining industry as a deadly parasite. There is no equivocation or evasion in the attitude assumed by the Butte I. W. W., according to the following report of the Associated Press:

Butte, Mont., May 16.—Granting of wage demands, regardless of the compensation given to miners, would not halt strikers until such time as the workers have instituted their own government and operation of the mines is begun by the workers' government. U. W. Sellers and A. S. Embree, organizers of the I. W. W., testified Wednesday at the coroner's inquest on the death of Thomas Manning, strike picket, who was shot April 21 in a clash between strikers and mine guards.

Sellers testified that an aim of the organization was to slow down production of every kind throughout the country.

SUBSTANTIAL MINE DEVELOPMENT.

When a committee of stockholders in a mining company travels 3000 miles to examine a property in an isolated district and returns home satisfied with the expenditure of their money the fact must be accepted as proof positive that the development was conducted with close attention to efficiency and economy. The present case is that of the Spanish Bell Consolidated Silver Mines company backed by Ohio capital invested in an old property given up forty years ago when the low price of silver and the extraordinary charges attached to marketing the ore rendered it impossible to continue production with silver selling around 50 to 60 cents an ounce. The visitors had every confidence and at no time was there the slightest distrust expressed about the business management but the men at the head of the company on whose showing the investment was undertaken wanted to demonstrate that the money committed to their care had been wisely and prudently invested and that returns of commensurate dividends would be forthcoming in a few months more. The company is one of the best organized in Nevada with every share of stock held by the men who made the original investment. These men responded to every call of their directors for development, and in the course of a year, the records show that 300 stockholders subscribed $250,000 for the advancement of this enterprise which is now fast approaching fruition. This is the kind of mining that encourages capital to enter the state and the example should set a precedent for others.

JITNEY SERVICE COUNTY AFFAIR

That the public service commission of Nevada will make an effort at the next session of the legislature to have the regulation of jitneys and street operating within county and not in competition with short line jitneys transferred from the commission to the county commissioners or some other county officials is limited by W. H. Simmons, member of the public service commission.

Simmons declared that the time of the public service commission was too valuable to be given to determining the rights of jitneys and street operating within county and not in competition with short line jitneys transferred from the commission to the county commissioners or some other county officials is limited by W. H. Simmons, member of the public service commission.

GET YOUR SEATS FOR SENIOR PLAY

Some real histrionic talent is being developed at the high school these days. The cast for the senior play which will be staged at the Butler Friday night is getting into very good form. The marks of the amateur are gradually wearing off and the young actors are attaining a degree of poise in their acting which is quite commendable.

Miss Verda Luce is playing the lead in the character of a little Irish country lass, the pride of her bachelor uncle and her aunt, Ann Mary. The uncle is played by Chris Shoen and the aunt by Miss Letitia Sawle. Both parts are strong type roles and are being well sustained. William Mead is starring with Miss Luce in the role of a rich young Dublin aristocrat. The play calls for some dramatic skill and real character interpretation.
